This paper explores the multifaceted contributions of MSMEs to India's self-reliance, focusing on three key subthemes: the pivotal Role of MSMEs in achieving self-reliance, the transformative potential of Digital Industry 4.0 in empowering these enterprises, and the integration of Sustainable Business Principles in the dynamic landscape of startups. Firstly, the paper delves into how MSMEs serve as the backbone of India's economic landscape, contributing significantly to job creation, innovation, and localized development. Their resilience and adaptability have been particularly evident in times of crisis, making them essential for building a self-reliant nation. Secondly, the advent of Digital Industry 4.0 presents an unprecedented opportunity for MSMEs to leapfrog into the future. We explore how technology-driven advancements can enhance productivity, expand market reach, and facilitate efficient resource utilization for these enterprises. Lastly, the paper emphasizes the importance of integrating sustainable business principles into the DNA of startups.
